Omaha in music, movies and books – (10 of the best references to Omaha in the media)

MUSIC	MOVIES	BOOKS
"Omaha," Counting Crows "Omaha" by Moby Grape as well as R.E.M.'s cover of it, "Turn the Page," Bob Seger- Seger often found himself "On a long and lonesome highway, east of Omaha." "We didn't get much west of Omaha because we weren't very big at the time," Seger once told The World-Herald. "We were always east of Omaha!" "Omaha Stylee," 311 "We're an American Band," Grand Funk Railroad- references "four young chiquitas in Omaha/ Waitin' for the band to return from the show."	"Hope Springs" - Tommy Lee Jones and Meryl Streep go for marriage counseling and, after it's over, end up back in Omaha. "Election" - the comedy about a high school student council election might be the most famous. The film was mostly filmed at Papillion-La Vista High School. Payne's "Citizen Ruth," "About Schmidt" and "Downsizing" also are set in Omaha. "Up in the Air" - George Clooney's corporate downsizer spends most of his time traveling, but when he's home, he's in Omaha, (also where his company HQ is). "Boys Town" - mostly fictional, it is based on the life of Father Edward J. Flanagan and Boys Town. The cast includes Mickey Rooney and Spencer Tracy, who won an Oscar for his portrayal of Father Flanagan.	"Eleanor & Park" - Omahan Rainbow Rowell writes about two teens living in Omaha in the '80s. Eleanor and Park meet on the school bus and, after some time, the outcasts become friends. "I Am a Genius of Unspeakable Evil and I Want to Be Your Class President" - Josh Lieb's comedic novel is about Oliver Watson, a young genius bent on world domination. But first, he has to win the election at his Omaha middle school. It proves much harder than he thought.
